V1 : July 09

Directions: Cross over the River Thames on Kingston Bridge. Continue straight and then bear left to pass a roundabout on the right. Just after the World War II memorial cross A turn right to cross Hampton Court Road via the pedestrian crossing and then turn left. Soon the entrance to the exclusive Hampton Court Palace Golf Club can be seen on the left.

Turn right into Church Grove and continue to meet the Victorian church on the right. Opposite the church is a small wrought iron gate in the brick wall. Go through the gate to enter the impressive horse chestnut avenue of Bushy Park. Keep ahead then go through the big gate at the end of the track to expose a large expanse of open space.

Continue along the gravel path to pass the fenced off cricket ground on the right, then take the path forking slightly right. Go straight over the gravel track and keep straight on through the long grassy fields towards the plantation. B Go over a crossing track and keep ahead through the bracken ferns aiming to skirt around the right hand edge of the plantation.

Bushy is the second largest of the Royal Parks. Henry VIII originally stocked Bushy Park with deer and it became an important Royal hunting ground in Tudor times.

Continue over the small bridge to cross between the Leg of Mutton Pond on the right and the very long narrow pond on the left. Turn immediately left on the other side to follow the elongated pond on its right. At the end turn right and follow the outside edge of the next pond called Heron Pond. Keep close to its edge as the path crosses a board walk then heads rightwards. Ignore the small criss-crossed footbridge shortly which shortly comes into view. Keep ahead through the bracken with the small watercourse following on the left. The broad grass track soon ends at a white railing with fence posts.

Turn left at the railing and head towards a large old water pump on a plinth in the trees. Continue on through the trees to emerge at Chestnut Avenue with a single row of horse chestnut and four rows of lime trees which are from an earlier planting of 1622, during the reign of James I.

This mile long avenue was conceived by Sir Christopher Wren. The horse chestnut trees in Chestnut Avenue flower in the late spring.

To visit the Diana Fountain, C turn left and walk along Chestnut Avenue. There are toilets beyond the Fountain near the park boundary.

To continue cross directly over Chestnut Avenue and keep on through the trees to emerge at another white railing. It is here that the watercourse emerges from the other side of the road after it has been diverted underground. To meet up with this watercourse again as it disappears under the fence ahead, continue on the path just to its left then turn right to go through an unobtrusive wooden gate leading to the Waterhouse Woodland Gardens..

Turn left to follow the winding path with the waterway on the right.

Keep following the path past another bridge over the watercourse and a cottage. The path eventually ends at a fenced area where there is a gate to exit. On emerging at the clearing of trees, go straight to meet another gate leading into the next section of the Waterhouse Woodland Gardens beside the little keeper's hut.

Follow the path straight ahead before forking right, and then follow another right fork to emerge at a clearing and a footbridge. Go over the footbridge to reach a small lily pond and beyond it a cottage called River Lodge. Follow the path rightward around the pond and continue past River Lodge.

Keep straight on beside the fence line on the broad track through the trees. Go through the wooden gate to reach a crossing path known as Cobbler's Walk.

The route goes right here but it is worth making a short diversion leftward to see the River Longford. D This is actually a canal, dug by hand over nine months in 1639 and it was an outstanding feat of engineering for its day.

To continue turn right and go through the gate to expose the vast open fields then turn left to follow the small path beside the fence line. Keep on this path as it heads to the bottom corner then turns right to pass nearby to Upper Lodge and meet the paved park road.

Turn left at the roadside and follow it until it makes a left turn. Turn right here onto the paved path and keep ahead, passing a small pond to the left. At the end of the path exit Bushy Park through the metal gate and continue along the gravel track to meet Laurel Road on the left. Follow this road on its right to meet the busier Hampton Road ahead.

Along to the right of Hampton Road is a bus stop. Alternatively Fulwell station is less than a kilometre further along the route. To continue, cross Hampton Road and take King's Road ahead, then first left into Connaught Road. To reach Fulwell station turn right and head along Wellington Road.

Otherwise cross Wellington Road and head straight down Burtons Road opposite. The road crosses a railway line and then continues following the trees on the right.

Eventually Burtons Road ends to join up with the busy Uxbridge Road. Cross over Burtons Road here and a few metres along is a metal gate on the right. Go through the gate onto the golf course and follow the path leftward in the open field before forking right to continue in the direction towards the large building. The grass path turns into a gravel track and follows a green metal picket fence line.

Keep on the track as it turns into a paved path and veers right around the car park. Exit the golf club by the metal gate to meet Staines Road. Cross Staines Road and turn right. There are bus stops along Staines Road.

Leave the path and trek left across the grass to find another path following close to the river's edge. Turn right and follow the Crane flowing on the left as the route goes under a dark bridge. Once safely emerged on the other side, the track divides. Take the track veering left to continue close to the river's edge. After a while the river Crane splits and the track goes rightwards up the short incline to expose a very interesting structure known as the Shot Tower. F

This listed building is a skeleton of an ancient gunpowder mill which was built in 1766. With 87 steps to the top of the tower, fabulous views of the tree canopy and beyond can be seen.

Continue to follow the river along the path straight ahead and eventually the path veers right to leave the park and arrives at the roadside of the A314 Hounslow Road. Turn right until, opposite the Duke of York pub, a pedestrian crossing enables you to cross.

To continue, follow the roadside as it passes Hounslow Cemetery on the left and then heads over the railway line. Just after crossing Simpson Road turn immediately left into the open grassed space and follow its left edge to the bottom corner. Take the track through the trees in the corner to emerge at a stile. Go over the stile and continue straight ahead along the wide grassed track into the open space of Hounslow Heath.

Hounslow Heath is the last surviving remnant of a once huge heath that covered most of south-west Middlesex.

The path goes slightly left and soon a small bench comes into view. Turn left shortly before the bench to follow the broad grass track as it goes over several crossings of tracks and then eventually turns rightwards.

Carefully cross straight over the course and continue through a small section of trees and over a footbridge. Ignore the path left and continue to meet the metal barrier and bridge going over the River Crane. Turn right once over the bridge to follow the path, always keeping the Crane close by on the right.

Keep along this path for some time until it eventually stops at a road bridge. Turn left just before the bridge and exit the woods via the metal barriers. This road is Staines Road and to the left here is a BP store and the Crown & Sceptre pub. Cross directly over Staines Road, turn right and then just before the bridge turn left between the metal barriers to enter Donkey Wood. Follow the path as it goes over two footbridges over a weir.

Follow the path rightward as it goes over another wooden footbridge and continues. The path opens into a clearing with a lone bench and then the River Crane comes into view on the right. The path soon becomes a wooden boardwalk leading over a swampy part beside the Crane. At the end of the boardwalk continue over a small metal footbridge, through a kissing gate and then under a road bridge. Turn immediate left up the steps to the roadside, at the top of the steps turn left again to cross the bridge and the river.

Go through the gap in the fence to the left into a wooded area G with the river on the left. Eventually the path opens out at the busy roadside of the A30 where the route turns left. Section 10 of the LOOP continues ahead on the other side but to reach this turn left along the A30 to the first set of traffic lights to cross the road.

On the other side turn left to reach Hatton Cross tube station on the Piccadilly Line or right to continue the LOOP.
